2 NO-PRESSURE GAMES

Two Truths and a Snowflake

The classic 'two truths and a lie', with a winter twist.

Players: 4 to 40 · Time: 15 to 20 min · Materials: None (paper optional)

How to play

1. Each person thinks of three short statements about themselves: two true, one invented (the 'snowflake').
2. Taking turns, people read out their three statements.
3. Everyone else guesses which one is the snowflake. Reveal, applaud, next person.

Tips: Large group? Split into tables of 6. Remote: people type their statements in the chat and everyone votes with a reaction emoji or poll.

Find-Someone-Who Bingo

A gentle mingling game: conversation starters with a goal.

Players: 10 to 100 · Time: 15 to 25 min · Materials: Printed bingo card (last page), pens

How to play

1. Everyone gets a bingo card with 16 prompts such as 'has been to another continent'.
2. Walk around and find a different person for each square. Write their name in it.
3. The first person with a full row (or the whole card) calls 'Bingo!' and wins.

Tips: Introverts like it because the card gives you a ready-made reason to talk. Remote: use breakout rooms of 3 for 4 minutes each.

5 SECRET MISSIONS

Cut out the cards, let each guest draw one at arrival and keep it secret. Missions are always kind – passing is allowed.
